WisconSibs Supports Keeping Family Care/IRIS/ADRCs

(APPLETON) – WisconSibs, which supports more than 500 families of people with disabilities in Wisconsin, supports keeping Wisconsin’s current long-term care programs in place without proposed changes.

“The Wisconsin Legislative Fiscal Bureau’s report on long-term care showed that the current program has both served people well and has brought down costs in the past 10 years,” said Harriet Redman.

“Families in our network, especially adult siblings involved with the care of their brother or sister since childhood and now as adults, have been clear that Family Care and IRIS are not broken. They don’t need fixing.”

WisconSibs supports an open stakeholder process for any changes that would be made to Family Care, IRIS, and ADRCs.
